But on a certain day came one
Who knocked and would not be defied
And threw the rusted casements wide
And entered with the wind and sun.
The dingy webs that grief had spun,
The dust that sad neglect had laid,
The faded hangings, rent and frayed,
Had vanished ere his work was done,

Oh, he hath swept my heart for me
Clean of old sorrowing and doubt,
And he hath set it all about
With peace and happy certainty!
Oh, home be glad for such as he
And very sweet nor let him find
That ghost one tenant left behind,
That silent, sad eyed memory!

Corrected. don not long ago was followed with great interest by writers on medical jurisprudence. Hitherto many such writers have expressed great doubt about these cases, for the process is by no means so easy of use as people think.

Very extravagant ideas prevail among the public as to the power of anæsthetics, owing perhaps to the license employed by novelists when they describe "fancy" cases in their books.

One reads, for instance, of a man in a railway carriage waving a handkerchief before the face of a fellow traveler and producing instantaneous unconsciousness. This is absolutely impossible. Another imaginative writcirculatin round 'mong the neighbors er recently described a murder carried bout you and Patience breakin off yer out by pushing a towel saturated with a powerful anæsthetic under the bedroom door of his sleeping victim. A RELIGIOUS CENSUS. The Difficulties That Such an Under-

PRECIOUS STONES.

The Methods by Which They Are Tested by Experts. In a lecture on precious stones re cently delivered before the Industrial ssociation of Berlin, Dr. Immanuel Friedlander said that the testing of diamonds is comparatively simple. The common test for hardness suffices. If the stone resists strong attacks, it is certain to be genuine; if it does not, signs in Brooches, Rings, Chains, the damage is insignificant, as only an Bracelets, etc. Hardsome and cheap mitation has been destroyed. This test, however, is doubtful with rubles. If a ruby can be affected by a steel file or by quartz, it is surely not genuine, but such a test with a topaz is liable to injure a valuable stone. The test for hardness is of no avail with emeralds, as this stone is not much harder than quartz and in addition possesses the quality of cracking the optical test is best. A glass magnifying about 100 times suffices. Every expert knows that almost all preclous stones have little flaws. Nearly every ruby and all emeralds have many defects, which are so characteristic that the genuineness of the stones is readily established. Such a test is very necessary with rubles, because the imitations are very deceiving. Their color is absolutely durable and often much finer than that of the genuine, although it may be stated that a somewhat yellowish tint is always sus
